BOARD OF INQUEST
IS CALLED AT ONCE

Brave and Resourceful
Navy Flyer Was Gallant Leader of Frisco-Hawaii Trip.

Philadelphia, August 27.—
(AP)—Commander John Rodgers, hero of the San Francisco-Hawaii flight, is dead.

The brave and resourceful navy flyer who warded off death on the broad Pacific ocean was killed as the result of a drop in a land plane into shallow water of the Delaware river this afternoon. He was injured so seriously that death overtook him in the naval hospital in two hours. He died at 5 o'clock.

Samuel Schultz, of Philadelphia, his mechanic, with a broken back, lay near death tonight in the hospital of the Philadelphia navy yard, near which the accident occurred.

Stories Differ
Eye-witnesses differ on the distance the commander fell, but most of them agreed it was between 30 and 150 feet, as he was gliding to make a landing.

A naval board of inquest was called immediately and it was announced that no public statement would be made until a report was presented to the secretary of the navy and Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics.

The cause of death so far as navy surgeons could determine tonight, was hemorrhages due to broken ribs puncturing vital organs. Many of the ribs on one side were crushed in. One of his legs broke in two places and cut open.

Suffer: Great Pain.
The famous commander suffered great pain and was unconscious at intervals, but he was able in the true navy fashion to give fragments of information to naval officers as his life ebbed away.

Commander Rodgers was just ending a flight from the Anacostia field, Washington, D. C., to inspect at the aircraft factory in the navy yard some new planes of the type used on the historic cross Pacific flight. His coming here was known only to the immediate officers at the yard commanded by the Kimes boys August 13 at Fayetteville, Ark.

Men Who Raided Cov-

Muskogee, Okla., August 27.—(AP)— Eluding posses made up of nearly 100 men, two desperadoes believed to belong to the gang that Wednesday robbed two Covington, Okla., banks, today had escaped into the hills of western Arkansas, after wounding three officers, one fatally, commandeering their car and kidnapping one of them.

Two pitched battles between the outlaws and their pursuers were held during the day, one in Sequoyah county, Oklahoma, the other near Rudy, Ark.

Police Chief J. C. Woll, of Sallsaw, and Perry Chuculate and Bert Cotton, Sequoyah county deputy sheriffs, were wounded in the first engagement with the men. Chuculate died early tonight at Fort Smith, Ark.
The outlaws then took the officers' car and fled forcing Woll to accompany them. Woll was wounded slightly in the shoulder. Soon afterward, they picked up a farmer who was walking along the highway and added him to the party, presumably as a guide through the hilly country.

Driving in an erratic course through Sequoyah county they arrived this afternoon, of a quiet town. Woll, wounded in the shoulder, was flung from the car at Petersburg. Members of the pursuing posse took him to a hospital where it was said his condition was not serious. The farmer was believed to have been released previously.

WOUNDED IN BATTLE
DEPUTY SHERIFF DIES.

St. Smith, Ark., August 27.—(AP) Perry Chuculate, deputy sheriff at Sallisaw, Sequoyah county, Okla., died in a St. Smith hospital at 5:50 o'clock this afternoon, of a gunshot wound received this morning in a pitched battle with two bandits.

Bandits Seize Car.
J. C. Woll, chief of police of Sallisaw, was kidnapped by the bandits after the gun battle, which occurred just before 11 o'clock this morning.
Woll was taken to a hospital at Sallisaw, where he died. Because the bandits car, a closed model, had been disabled during the battle, the robbers fled in the touring car of Dan Sharp, another Sequoyah county deputy. Will Ross, a young farmer, who wandered into the battle, also was forced to accompany the bandits.

Ross and Woll were released at 2 o'clock, after sharing the bandits' lunch with them, near Uniontown, Ark. Woll positively identified photographs of G. W. and Matthew Kimes, formerly of Chester, Ark., named charging the robbery with firearms of a bank at Begg, Okla., two weeks ago, as his two captors. The photographs were taken with two young girls, who, it was disclosed, were married to the Kimes boys August 13
at Fayetteville, Ark.

MORRIS ASSAILED
BY W. D. HOFFMAN

'Railroading' Charged to Eubanks by Slate in Heated Verbal Tilt Over Book Purchase.

Branding as a "damnable outrage" futile efforts of a trio of the board of education—Dr. Fred Morris, J. W.
Maddox and W. C. Slate—to prevent purchase of supplementary history books in Atlanta public schools, W.
D. Hoffman Friday afternoon assailed Dr. Morris for his stand and what promised to be a personal encounter was averted only by intervention of Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the board.

The three, who were attacked for their "intolerant stand and ignorance of what history is," attempted to send the proposal to purchase $150 worth of supplementary reading texts for each of the four junior high schools to the text book committee of the board.

The latest flare in the long drawn out fight in the selection of a history for junior high school students was precipitated when Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, brought in the recommendation that "Robinson and Breasted" history texts be used in conjunction with the recently adopted "McNeal's Modern Europe and Its Beginnings." At the time McNeal's book was decided on, "Webster's Early European History" was the recommendation of the text book committee on complaint of certain members of the board that it "reeked of Catholicism."

"Ravings of Ignorance."
In his fight on the proposed new books Friday, Dr. Morris declared it was an attempt to thwart just what the board had voted to do, and that acceptance of the proposal would inject into the school curriculum a liberal course in "Romanism."

Dr. Hoffman assailed this as the "ravings of ignorance" and declared that "civilization and culture are so interwoven with the Catholic church in the Roman and other European empires that ignorance of the fundamentals is incalculable."

It was at this juncture that Dr.
Morris jumped to his feet to resent Mr.
Hoffman's remarks, and a scathing exchange of personalities followed. In the heat of the argument, just when challenges had been hurled and accepted, Dr. Eubanks succeeded in making his gavel heard and restored order with difficulty. In former meetings, Dr. Eubanks has threatened to remove from the meeting hall members who engaged in such fiery ruminations, but Friday, if he had ejected those engaged in the tilt, he would have broken the quorum of the session, and for the time being the board would have been forced to adjourn without completing a meeting.

Nine Members Present.
Only nine members of the board were present Friday, and as the session was a special called meeting to consider "emergency" matters eight members constituted a quorum. In an ordinary session seven members are a quorum.

The motion to refer the history-book question to committee was beaten in the vote. Mr. Slate charged Dr.
Eubanks with an "attempt to railroad" by announcing the result of the ballot without allowing "time," according to his claim, in order that he might move for reconsideration.

Mr. Slate, prior to taking the vote on the proposal, several notices that the session was a special called meeting to consider "emergency" matters

Foreign Minister of Nica-

Two Americans Reported Seriously Injured in Attack by Revolutionists on Puerto Cabezas.

Geneva, Switzerland, August 27.— (AP)—The American continent suddenly and sensationally entered the domain of possible League of Nations political activities today when Nicaragua filed a protest against Mexico, alleging a freebooting expedition by an auxiliary Mexican warship to help Nicaraguan revolutionaries overthrow the government.

Nicaragua, in its note of protest, does not request specific league action, but Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league, has forwarded the protest to all the members of the organization, as well as Mexico, a non-member. The secretary general also has communicated to the Mexican government that, in accordance with the regular procedure of the league, Mexico may forward to league members any communication which it may consider desirable in connection with the Nicaraguan note. The league covenant provides that non-members shall be invited to accept obligation of membership in case of a dispute between members and non-members.

First Latin-American Dispute.
This is the first time a Latin-American dispute has come before the league, and it is the first time a special committee has been appointed to study the matter. The league is waiting for an answer to the Nicaraguan note, so that both sides may be heard in connection with the protest which the Nicaraguan foreign minister has denounced Mexico to the world as having flagrantly violated the rights of the Nicaraguan republic by the use of force.

Should this occur, the council would make an investigation and recommend such action as seemed best. Then, if Mexico refused to accept temporary membership in the league and resorted to war, league penalties would operate against her.

The note of the Nicaraguan foreign minister concludes:
"I have sent a strong protest to the illegal government in regard to its conduct, and I denounce it to the world for having flagrantly abused its power in violating the fundamental rights of this republic."

Coolidge Anxious
For Conference
With Sheffield

Any Recommendations in Reference to Mexico
Will Carry Great Weight
With Executive.

CORPORATION DATA
URGED BY RIPLEY

President Doubtful as to Power To Give Protection Desired for American Security Holders.

Paul Smith's, N. Y., August 27.— (AP)—Any recommendations as to policies with reference to Mexico that James R. Sheffield, American ambassador to Mexico City, may make to President Coolidge, it was said today at the summer white house, will have great weight with the chief executive.

Discussing the proposed visit of the ambassador to White Pine camp, officials said Mr. Coolidge would like to see him and talk about the Mexican situation and obtain his first-hand views about conditions in the southern republic.

No Date Set for Visit.
No date has been set for the visit as yet, but it probably will be soon.
The ambassador, who has come to this country for a vacation, was received by Secretary Kellogg, of the state department, Wednesday and is understood to be planning a visit to Atlantic City before coming here.

In the opinion of the president, Mr.
Sheffield is an able man and trained lawyer who has made an excellent ambassador and has handled a great difficult situation in Mexico with skill and discretion. His accepting the post is viewed by Mr. Coolidge as a large sacrifice on his part from the standpoint of his legal work, and the president feels he has performed a distinct public service in making the sacrifice.

While a year or more ago Mr. Sheffield was in poor health and recovering from an operation, it is understood by Mr. Coolidge that he has now completely recovered.

That Mr. Sheffield is in agreement with the administration on its Mexican policy has been emphasized by Secretary Kellogg both here and in Washington.

Data on Corporation...

While President Coolidge has not read the recent magazine article of Professor William Z. Ripley, of Harvard college, urging some action by the federal trade commission to assure security holders more complete and more frequent information about the financial condition of corporations, he is understood to be inclined to doubt that there is so much opportunity for national as for state action in this field.

While any recommendations on such matters that might be made by Professor Ripley, it was said today for the president, would be entitled to consideration, but they could be dismissed as unfounded.

Moreover, it was emphasized that Mr. Coolidge is keenly aware that there are 20,000,000 security holders in this country and he wants everything possible to be done to safeguard their interests. This general question, it was added, he has long had under consideration and only last winter he conferred with Professor Ripley on a suggestion that stock without voting power should not be issued. This is understood to have been dealt with since by the listing committee of the New York exchange.

U. S. Lacks Jurisdiction.
As for any plan to assure the ordinary investor being given frequent and accurate information concerning the finances and management of corporations, it was said any legislation in this line would have to keep clearly in mind that, except for a few corporations such as some railroads, most concerns are not national but state legal character, and that, therefore, the United States does not have very complete jurisdiction over them.

While the federal trade commission was said the federal trade commission broadly has jurisdiction over commodities in interstate commerce and having jurisdiction over the product of a corporation might be quite different from having it over the finances and corporate practices of a concern.

SHIPPING BOARD
DECIDES TO HOLD
ATLANTA HEARING

Itinerary of Members of Government Body Includes Savannah,
Charleston, Jacksonville

Washington, August 27.—(AP)— More than a score of cities will be visited by shipping board members to gather information, through hearings, for the formulation of recommendations to congress as to what policy should be pursued with regard to the American merchant marine. An itinerary made public today calls for hearings during October at the following points: Portland, Maine; Boston, New York city, Washington, Charleston, S. C.; Savannah, Atlanta, Jacksonville, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St.
Louis, Omaha, Kansas City, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Detroit, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Oregon;
Seattle, Spokane and Boise, Salt Lake City and Denver. The exact dates of the hearings have not been determined.

Chairman O'Connor will remain in Washington, leaving the holding of hearings to the other six members, working in pairs. They plan to complete their preliminary work by November 1, leaving November and December for preparation of a report which must be submitted to congress by January 1.

In submitting his report Mr. Hoffman stated that the board now has on hand enough money to pay teachers through the month of September and meet operating expenses of schools until January 1. He explained, however, that funds to pay teachers, amounting to about $200,000 for the months of October, November and December, are still lacking.

When the year 1925 was closed, he said, public schools had a deficit of $526,492.32 and that $352,000 has been spent by the board since that time in erection of permanent buildings.

The present year being the first that the budget system has been in operation, he pointed out that the deficit anticipated by the beginning of 1927 compares favorably with the previous year, the difference being only about $50,000.

In asking for an appropriation to cover the whole deficit Mr. Hoffman stated that this would allow schools to start the next year with a clean slate.

Expenditure of $63,000 for additional acreage at the Hoke Smith Junior High school and a sum, the amount of which was not named, for purchase of more acreage at Moreland Avenue school, was ratified by the board and will go to city council at its next regular meeting.

ifornia.
Mrs. Belmont obtained a divorce here several days ago from Raymond Belmont, son of the late August Bel-

Banker Indignantly
Rails at Attorneys;
Ignores Questions

Hearing in Federal Court Enlivened by Stormy Outbursts as Witness Repeatedly Refuses To Answer Opposition Lawyer's Questions.

TRANSFERRED OWN HOLDINGS
TO W. D. MANLEY CO., HE ADMITS

Hints Sounded That Manley Is Holding Securities in Secret Safety Deposit Box---Attorney Charged With Appropriating Banker's Private Papers.

Assuming an attitude of vitriolic antagonism toward attorneys for opposition—one which brought him indignantly to his feet on several occasions on the theory that they were "picking on him"—W. D. Manley, president of the defunct Bankers Trust company, took the stand Friday afternoon in federal district court to testify in bankruptcy proceedings brought against him.

The stormy hearing, which was punctuated at frequent intervals by passionate outbursts and curt refusal to answer questions on the part of Manley, was featured by an admission from the banker, secured with great difficulty, to the effect that assets he had listed about a year ago as worth approximately $5,000,000 in reality are now practically worthless. Attorneys, by the nature of questions directed at Manley, also hinted that belief exists that the banker is withholding certain securities in a secret safety deposit box. This Manley heatedly denied.

Before Mr. Manley began his testimony, his counsel informed the court that his appearance at the hearing was in direct conflict with the opinion of Manley's physicians, who said he was not in physical condition and warned that dangerous possibilities might result from the ordeal of court examination.

Attorney R. H. Jones, Jr., representing creditors of Manley, produced a check calling for $1,000, which Mr.
Manley admitted "giving in payment for the W. D. Manley company." This was done in an effort to show that the banker purchased the company in order to "get a charter quick," to which he transferred all of his personal assets.

"Didn't you buy the W. D. Manley company?"

Carswell Continues Attack On 'Deferred' Road Payments

Sylvania, Ga., August 27.—(Special.)—If John N. Holder goes contrary to his own platform now, right before the primary, what could you expect him to do if by any chance he were elected governor? George H. Carswell asked his audience here today in the course of his address as a candidate for governor.

The only plank in Mr. Holder's platform are these two: "Pay as you go," and "my record." His record has been shot to pieces. And now he himself shoots the "pay as you go" plank to pieces by that neat little private bond issue of something over three-quarters of a million dollars on the coastal highway down yonder between Savannah and Darien.

"That coastal highway is a fine road. Georgia needs it. I would do nothing to hinder its construction."

"But I would not do as Mr. Holder has done: ask the people to elect me governor on a 'pay as you go' platform and then violate that same platform even before the primary."

Mr. Carswell declared Mr. Holder's name as chairman is signed to the state highway board's notice to contractors in regard to construction of 43.45 miles on the coastal highway in Bryan, Liberty and McIntosh counties, otherwise known as federal aid project No. 377.

"That notice calls for bids on the following condition," he added.

"Proposals shall be submitted," says the notice, "on the basis of deferred payments payable as follows: $250,000 July 15, 1927; $250,000 January 15, 1928; $250,000 July 15, 1928; and the balance January 15, 1929."

"Is that opposing the issuance of state bonds? What are these deferred payments but state bonds—without the safeguards and formalities that would have surrounded documentary issue of bonds."

"Is that not 'loading down our people with heavy debt'? Three-quarters of a million dollars definitely, with an unknown balance to be added on top of that, is somewhat weighty, isn't it? 'In that building highways out of current funds?' Mr. Holder is using no current funds at all, in this case. He is using nothing but future funds—funds that he may not have for use at all. He doesn't even know the highway department will have the money to make these payments."

Mr. Carswell reminded his hearers of his own legislative experience in both branches of the general assembly, wherein his last term he was president of the state senate. He declared he has participated actively in constructive movements throughout his life, both public and private. He has always supported all grades of education, Mr. Carswell declared.

"And from the very first, in every act and thought and deed, I have fought machine politics and departmental control of state government," Mr. Carswell declared.

"Let Mr. Holder dare to say as much. He is the arch champion of machine government—of government by hidden influences, through machine politicians, through political pay rolls."

"Let him deny his alliance with J. J. Brown, whose defeat for commissioner of agriculture is written in the sky where anyone may read. Let

Mr. Holder deny employing Mr. Brown's brother at high pay on a useless job three days after that brother had been fired as assistant engineer at the state capital because he was incompetent and worthless. And let Mr. Holder deny that immediately thereafter Mr. Brown hired, also at high pay and also on a useless job, Mr. Holder's Man Friday, named Bailey."

Mr. Carswell repeated his declaration that Mr. Holder is preparing to throw over J. J. Brown and discard him as an ally in politics.

Labor Presidents Will Race Mules Here Labor Day

Three former presidents of the Atlanta Federation of Trades are to compete in the most unique speed event ever held over the historic South-eastern Fair race track at Lakewood Amusement park Monday, September 6, when the first annual mule race of the Atlanta trades organization is held with the Oscar Mills cup and other prizes at stake for the winner.

Three mules, selected personally from the entire hybrid population of the Atlanta stock yards by George Haney, chairman of the amusements committee, are being worked out daily over the track to break them thoroughly to the business of drawing racing sulkeys in preparation for the event.

The federation's Labor day committee has appropriated more than $250 as prizes for other races and contests during the afternoon while J. L. Edwards, pyrotechnic artist of the George Newton organization of Chicago, is working steadily with a crew of carpenters and other assistants to build the set pieces and display features for the fireworks display which will be a feature of the evening.

The selection of one daredevil from among nearly 100 applicants for the place of stunt man in the airplane circus to be staged during the afternoon has been set for Saturday afternoon of this week. The one selected, and five others who are to appear in the series of air shows during the Southeastern Fair, October 2 to 9, will be given a rigorous course of training for his work under personal supervision of Captain A. B. McMullen.

Final preparations for the parade and the celebration at Lakewood will be made by the Labor day committee at a special session in the Labor temple at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon with Sid Tiller, president of the federation, presiding.

Doubt Authenticity Of Button Gwinnett Signature in West

Doubt as to the validity of a signature of Button Gwinnett, Georgia signer of the Declaration of Independence, purported to be in the possession of a California woman was expressed Friday by state officials.

The woman wrote the attorney general and said she had the original of the Declaration of Independence. She referred to the recent sale of a signature of Gwinnett for $27,000 and offered to sell her signature to Georgia for a reasonable price. It was stated that the woman probably had a copy of the Declaration of Independence as the original is in possession of the United States government.

League of Women Voters Hears Candidates Speak

First of Series of Meetings Held for gubernatorial and Legislative Aspirants.

Addresses by Luther H. Still, Frank H. Hooper, Jr., and J. F. Gordy, candidates for the legislature, featured the first of a series of pre-election rallies of the Atlanta League of Women Voters Friday afternoon in the assembly hall of the chamber of commerce.

Questionnaires have again been sent to candidates, asking for details regarding their experience in business, public records and policies. The rally was given over to hearing the candidates or their representatives for governor and the lower house of the legislature.

To Hear Others. Mrs. Maude Pollard Turman, president, announced that Tuesday, from noon to 1 o'clock, candidates or their representatives for the state senate and congress would be heard by the league at a special meeting at the chamber, and Wednesday, at the same hour and place, candidates for commissioner of agriculture, superintendent of education and the public service commission have been invited to speak or have representation.

At Friday's meeting George H. Carwell, candidate for governor, was represented by his campaign manager, S. A. Nunn, who outlined the former's campaign policies and assured that he stood for a progressive administration.

Dr. L. G. Hardman, also a gubernatorial candidate, was represented by his private secretary, Mrs. H. Carington. She reviewed Dr. Hardman's past record, stating he had been instrumental in passing the state prohibition bill in 1907, had been active in improving the state college of agriculture and helped frame the bill creating the state board of health, as well as other health measures. He belonged to no machine, and favored a change in policies of state government operation, she concluded.

Still Applauded. At this point Mrs. Turman announced that J. O. Wood, candidate for governor, had not answered the league's questionnaires and had no representative.

Attacks upon Miss Bessie Kempton, representative in the lower house of the legislature, who is seeking re-election, were made by Miss Eleanor Raoul and Mrs. Mary McWhorter. It was their contention that Miss Kempton had pledged herself in a questionnaire before the last election to support certain legislation affecting the city of Atlanta, and failed to act accordingly.

Although he has no opposition for the legislature, Luther H. Still outlined his policies in the 10 minutes allowed him by the chairman. He declared he favored measures advocated by the league, and added he intended to favor laws relating to child labor and kindred subjects. Mr. Still was applauded several times.

J. F. Gordy, seeking the legislative seat held by Miss Kempton, who was not represented at the meeting, stated he favored child welfare measures and a "common-sense program" of state government. He said he was not lined up with any political machine and was not a politician, and desired to make no campaign promises. He assured the women he was having his race on "truth, honesty and integrity."

Attacks Department. Frank H. Hooper, candidate for re-election to the legislature, launched a hot attack on the state department of agriculture, stating that the department procedure should be changed, as farmers receive little benefit from its activity. He reviewed his record and declared he would support the council manager charter movement for Atlanta in the lower house if the measure passed a referendum vote in the city.

Local self-government, better laws and reforms are advocated, Mrs. Turman emphasized before adjournment.

John N. Holder had no representative at the meeting.

BEGIN CONSTRUCTION OF ANNEX TO PLANT

Construction on the $100,000 addition to the Corrugated Paper company plant on Stephens street, adjoining the present building, has gotten under way and is expected to be completed by October 1, according to announcement Friday by officials of the concern.

The new annex will add 40,000 square feet of floor space to the present area, making a total of 150,000 square feet, which represents an outlay of $250,000 in buildings. The annex will be used to house new machinery for the manufacture of folding boxes, into which line the company is expanding as well as the manufacture of corrugated paper products. The building is being done by the Massell Construction company.

THIRD NEWARK SHOE STORE OPENS TODAY

A chance to get a new pair of shoes and one pair of silk hose free to each man and woman who buys a pair of shoes will be offered today at the opening of the third Newark shoe store in Atlanta. The new store is at 46 Marietta street.

The newest Newark fall lines will be on display at the store, according to W. E. Watson, manager of the Mid-Southern territory for the Newark Shoe Stores company, who has been in Atlanta all this week attending to the details of the opening. The company's other two stores in Atlanta are at 5 Peachtree street and 79 Whitehall street. Mr. Watson said that the success of these stores has led to the opening of the third and possibly will bring another store to Atlanta in the coming few months.

Every purchaser of a pair of Newark shoes, many of which are fitted with Goodyear heels and are moderately priced, he said, will be given one pair of Lustris silk hose. Other details of the free shoe offer may be had at the store.

F. E. Byrd will have charge of the new store here.

DECATUR SCHOOL CHILDREN URGED TO OBTAIN CARDS

Applicants for admission to the first grade in the city schools of Decatur are required to secure admission cards from the office of the superintendent, at the Senior High school between September 1 and September 14, it was announced Friday.

Mothers are being urged to comply with this request, which insures every child of the required school age, a seat in one of the schools.

Applicants for admission who were not in attendance at the close of the last session, are required to secure admission cards from the superintendent.

It is important that all children be supplied with text books at opening of school and book lists may be obtained at Elkin's Drug company, where books are on sale, it was said.

PIONEER SERVANT FOUND IN STREET DIES AT GRADY

Eunice (Noony) Turner, aged negro servant in the pioneer Cruselle and Bonare families for more than half a century, died at Grady Hospital Tuesday night after she had been picked up on Spring street in a dying condition by a passing motorist.

The aged negro, who has been an orphan since the civil war, was raised by Mrs. Louise Ripley and began her early childhood as a servant in two of Atlanta's pioneer families.

Some time Tuesday morning she was found on Spring street suffering either from an accident or from a heart attack. A passing autoist picked her up and took her to Grady hospital where she died Tuesday night. The persons who carried "Noony" to the hospital are requested to please phone HUntley 7589-J in order that detailed information may be learned by those who are interested in the loss of the faithful old servant.

GLASS IS FINISHING REPLY TO MEMOIRS OF COLONEL HOUSE

Washington, August 27.—(P)—Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, arrived in Washington today to put the finishing touches to his book, which he has written in reply to Colonel E. M. House's memoirs of the Wilson administration.

The Virginia senator, who was an intimate associate of the late president and served in his cabinet as secretary of the treasury, declared that the House memoirs misrepresented Woodrow Wilson and his book, which was supported by documentary evidence, was designed as an accurate account of the major events of the Wilson administration.

The entire summer has been spent by Senator Glass at his home in Lynchburg, Va., where he has been working on the book, which he expects to send to the press soon.

DONALDSON PROBE PUSHED BY BOYKIN

Numerous witnesses were questioned Friday by Solicitor General John A. Boykin in the investigation into the brutal assassination, on the night of July 29, of Bert Donaldson, investigating ace of the solicitor's staff.

While the solicitor did not divulge the nature of the information obtained it was learned from authentic sources that the questioned the witnesses on the activities of Jack Lance, who has been identified as the "elephant stranger" who was seen with Donaldson at the Georgian Terrace hotel on the night the murder occurred, just a few minutes before shots were heard from the death room in the hotel.

Solicitor Boykin has stated that he is working at present on one point alone and that is to get it definitely established that Lance was the man who steered Donaldson to the room in the hotel where an assassin ambushed in a clothes closet riddled the investigator's body with bullets.

Lance is being held incommunicado in Fulton tower. He was arrested in Jacksonville, Fla., last Friday and returned to Atlanta on a murder warrant.

'Social Lion' Held Under Indictment Charging Larceny

Toils of the law Friday further enmeshed W. F. Merrick, of Miami, Fla., "Atlanta social celebrity aspirant," when he was indicted on a charge of larceny of an automobile by the Fulton county grand jury.

Merrick, who is 29 years of age, was arrested Wednesday night by City Detectives A. Lamar Pools and S. A. Smith as he was en route to a dinner party at an exclusive Atlanta hotel, where he was to act as host to 19 members of Atlanta's young social set.

The guests, sons and daughters of many prominent Atlanta families, believed that he was a son of George E. Merrick, millionaire promoter of Coral Gables, but following his arrest by police it was believed he was an "imposter."

His arrest followed a complaint from a local automobile rental agency, to which young Merrick is said to owe a bill of $49.88. The indictment charges that he rented the car and failed to return it.

He was removed from police headquarters, where he has been held to Fulton Tower Friday afternoon after the return of the indictment.

Merrick has denied that he claimed to be the son of Millionaire Merrick, but asserts that he is a nephew of the Florida capitalist.

LECTURER ON BIBLE TALKS HERE SUNDAY

O. P. Stacy, well-known international lecturer, will speak at the International Bible School Association hall, 44 1-2 East Hunter street, at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. It was announced Friday afternoon.

Mr. Stacy will speak on "Deliverance Near," and the public is cordially invited to be present. There will be no collection taken and seats will be free to everyone.

It is stated that the lecture will be one of unusual interest, dealing with present-day events in the light of prophecy and explaining how present conditions in the world are working out the purposes of God.

Mr. Stacy, it is said, does not believe in the old-time doctrine of eternal torment. He claims that it was added to the teachings of God's word during the dark ages. His lecture therefore does not deal with a supposed deliverance from that condition. While rejecting the idea of an eternity of torment for the race, he believes in the punishment of the wicked and makes the claim that the present distresses are in a measure a punishment upon men for disobeying the commandments of God.

SERGEANT BARBER BURIED WITH FULL MILITARY HONORS

Funeral services for William C. Barber, 42, an ordnance sergeant of the Thirtieth infantry at Fort McPherson, were held Friday afternoon from the chapel of Greenberg & Bond. Interment with military ceremonies was in the National cemetery at Marietta, the Rev. J. D. Hockman, chaplain of Fort McPherson, officiating.

Sergeant Barber, who was born in Oklahoma, was a veteran of the Spanish-American war and of the world war. He belonged to the American Legion, members of which organization served as pallbearers.

He is survived by his widow; two sons, Frank and William Barber, and three daughters, Misses Hulda, Frances and Jean Barber.

BURNING POT ROAST CAUSES FIRE ALARM

Little girl suffers five years from unusual skin trouble Resinol relieves and heals

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 9.—"Sometime ago my little girl's whole body became dry and scaly. The skin where her shoes were laced and under her feet cracked open, which made it very painful. We were advised to keep her skin soft with a good cold cream or pure lard and for five years I have spent many hours and used numerous half-pound cans of cold cream, but to no avail. As she grew older the trouble gradually became worse until I remembered that when she was a baby I had cured a bad case of eczema by using Resinol Soap and Ointment.

So for three weeks she has had no other soap on her skin and I cannot begin to tell you how much improvement has been made. Her feet are almost normal and the rest of her body is better than it has been for years. Up to this time I had never been able to bathe her, often than was absolutely necessary, but now a bath with Resinol soap actually makes her skin moist and rosy, whereas before, soap and water made her look and feel parched and dry even after a good application of grease."

Children Urged To See Picture

All of the children in the city are urged to see the beginning chapter of the wonderful serial, "The Great Circus Mystery," which is shown at the Saturday morning matinee this week at the Howard. Depicting the life in a circus, the mystery of this serial centers around the disappearance of some rare jewels, and scenes of adventure follow rapidly. All juniors are urged not to miss the first chapter.

Slans Salaams and By Louise Dooly

IT IS REPORTED that the great and only Toscanini, who has been resting from his duties as director of La Scala in Milan, Italy's most important lyric theater, will go to Rome as director of the Costanzi opera. The comment accompanying the report is that the Costanzi will then replace La Scala as Italy's operatic center.

The change, if it does come to pass, will be not unlike musical history in the United States, as it relates to Boston and New York.

There is the difference, however, that Boston, once the musical hub of America, did not derive this prestige out of opera. The Bostonians have never been opera fans. New Yorkers are, but the New England city did hold the palm for devotion to and support of absolute music, as embodied in symphony, chamber music and all the concert forms.

The temporary disintegration of the Boston orchestra, a leading history maker in music in America, and the tardiness of its return to its former leadership (it has not yet arrived), was a negative reason for Boston's encroachment on the reins; while New York's ability to pick them up and drive away with the situation was a positive reason.

New York's good fortune was due to many things—among them the great amount of money available from private sources for the subsidization of musical enterprise and the natural gravitation to New York, during and after the world war, of the great teachers and musicians from war-torn and poverty-ridden European centers of culture. This gravitation was natural, in that New York is not only the metropolis best known abroad, but that it was the headquarters for relief movements for European musicians in the "cashless" days of the war.

There was no one person responsible for New York's assuming of the new leadership. Rather was the change due to circumstances, in addition to persons; and the persons were the moneyed promoters with an ideal.

According to the fairly meager news reports from Italy, Toscanini is not only a big figure looming out of the situation there. But it is not likely that on his personality alone, forceful, unique as it is, rests the change in the seat of the musical government.

A closer inspection, if we could get it from this stage, would probably reveal that the new situation as regards Rome and Milan is probably not far different from that of New York and Boston—a transfer of preponderance of power in the Eternal City, not in one lone artist, great as he is, but among the promoters who pull the strings.

PIETRO MASCAGNI, by the way—yes, he wrote the "Intermezzo," most moving of the romantic part of Alvaro in that blood-and-thunder, and at the same time wonderfully singable and brilliant opera of Verdi's, "La Forza del Destino," as presented by the San Carlo opera company in Asheville recently, has one of the loveliest voices I have heard in a long time.

ALL OF WHICH IS a top-heavy introduction to the simple statement that James Di Gavia, whom I heard sing the romantic part of Alvaro in that blood-and-thunder, and at the same time wonderfully singable and brilliant opera of Verdi's, "La Forza del Destino," as presented by the San Carlo opera company in Asheville recently, has one of the loveliest voices I have heard in a long time.

That's how the modern woman saves time for other things—improves her cooking, too. St. Charles Evaporated is the convenient milk supply. Plenty of fresh milk but no bottles to wash. Saves space in the ice box, too—keeps on the pantry shelf till the can is opened. It's uniform—no cooking failures. It's doubly-rich, pure country milk—makes everything taste as if cooked with cream. If the recipe says milk, dilute with an equal part of water; for cream, use "as is". Order by the dozen or half dozen cans.

INSTALLMENT XXX.
BRETT IS SUSPICIOUS.

All Mutagayo and his helper had remained at the bottom of the hill with the car. Richenda and Fairways were quite alone. Suppose she struggled, kicked, insisted on being put down? She wondered vaguely what he would do then. Shake her, perhaps, hold her tight till she could scarcely breathe? Master her? O, undoubtedly he would master her. He'd done that all along the line so far. Richenda, who had till now acknowledged no man as master, seethed in silent wrath.

No, she would give him no chance to assert his strength still further! She would cling to the shreds of whatever iota of dignity was left to her. Passive resistance for the present, anything else would simply court defeat.

Presently he put her down. "If you don't mind standing a moment," he murmured in cool detachment, "it is a bit of a pull-up here—must get my second wind." (She spoke no word in answer.)

Another start, later another halt, then more jogging upwards, upwards, then the door of his tent.

"Please, please," she said, and broke off suddenly. The flap of the tent she had shared with Lucille was fastened. She felt a sudden bewildered misery. No, she could not go in there with that awful woman—she couldn't! And yet—

"O, this is hateful," she cried. "Hateful!" He was quiet for a moment, then: "I have no wish to force an unwelcome presence upon you," he told her. "You can go to your own tent if you will give me your word of honor that you will not leave it without my knowledge. Parole—you understand? You see, you will be quite alone and I do not propose to sit on guard outside your door all night."

"I'll take that case myself," she said suddenly.

"But—but isn't she—"

"Gone," he answered briefly.

Richenda moved away from him with a sigh of faint relief.

"Your word?" he reminded her.

"I give it," she answered dutifully, and pressed into the darkness of her tent.

She was still awake when the sun crept full above the skyline. For the past half hour the camp had been a clattering stir of movement. Presently came the summons of Jerome as he paused with the usual early cup of tea outside her door and, close upon his entrance, the voice of the unseen Fairways.

"Please get up and dress as quickly as you can. We shall be ready to move in another hour." He strode off without waiting for an answer.

She noticed then that the tray bore a substantial breakfast. Vaguely she was glad that he had not expected her to eat with him for she was very hungry, but she felt that she could never satisfy that hunger in his presence. Every morsel would have choked her.

She had nearly finished dressing when the rattle of mule carts came to her ears. She pushed aside the tent flap and walked out into the chill of early morning.

Everything lay packed around her. Already the boys were heaving the "chop boxes" into the carts. All Mutagayo, who, evidently acting upon orders given during their night drive, had brought the vehicle up the hill at this early hour grinned welcome to her as she came. How methodically Fairways planned everything! the thought ran through her. Masterful . . . inexorable . . . even in her anger against him there came, for one brief moment, a tinge of admiring wonder. This was the sort of man who, whatever his line of action might be, would never, through lack of thought, make mistakes.

"Have you packed your things?" he asked her.

"I have not," she answered a little sullenly.

"Please do so now—as quickly as you can."

She was surprised to find him in the tent at her side a moment later.

"I will help you," he said shortly.

"Thank you—I much prefer," she began.

"We have no time to waste," he silenced her.

Richenda's nerves betrayed her to quick irritation then. No, she would not labor side by side with him! How dared he insist on breaking in upon her intimate seclusion in this way?

"Very well," she said a little childishly, "if you want to pack my things—by all means get on with it!" Then turning her back deliberately upon him she sank into a canvas chair seething with silent indignation.

A short laugh with which he greeted her words did nothing to soothe her.

But, try as she would, Richenda could not prevent her anxious eyes stealing round unseen towards him. She knew how men packed! They stood about three yards away from the boxes and hurried in the things indiscriminately, swearing all the while at the nuisance of their task. But it took her less than five seconds to discover that such was not Fairway's method. In her ignorance she had made no allowances for those miles of wandering in the wilds that he had covered—miles during which he had grown skilled in every traveler's art, of which the expert and speedy packing of boxes is one of the most important. Happily, however, there was but little for him to do, as Richenda had "lived upon" two suitcases only in the camp.

He came across the locked writing case in which reposed her letter of credit, her bank pass book, and the bulk of her ready money.

She straightened in her chair. Money, she might want that later on; conscious of an amount of something less than three shillings in her purse, the thought ran through her.

"I will take that case myself," she said suddenly, a little too eagerly.

"Why?" he fixed shrewd eyes upon her.

"Simply because I wish it," she evaded.

"I'm afraid that, in our present circumstances, the reason you give is not enough for me. Am I correct in surmising that herein lies the means for a second escape from me?"

Mexico City, August 27.—A tremendous war might have resulted in Mexico had President Coolidge given his encouragement to the present religious controversy, it is declared in a telegram which Mexican Scottish Rite Masons have sent to the American chief executive.

The message, which congratulated the president for his refusal to participate in the religious conflict, was sent Friday in the name of the supreme council of the American Scottish Rite Masons and for Masonry in general in this country.

We send you our hearty applause for your firm stand against the religious conflict, we are glad to see you present our sincere recognition for your refusal to enter into a conflict designed to bring about a bear on your government. For if you had given any encouragement to this question your action perhaps would have unleashed a tremendous war in our country.

It is impossible for one on the outside to have a real understanding of this conflict and to realize that the only way to maintain public order in Mexico is to enforce the law.

The Mexican government has expressed its opinion unconditionally to the will of the people as expressed many years ago in the constitution.

The message is signed by Luis Manuel Rojas, grand commander, and by four other officers of the Masonic order.

Palmer gratification over the firmness of the Mexican clergy's stand against the religious laws of the United States government was expressed in a message received by the episcopate Friday.

The pope sent his benediction following receipt of a message from the Mexican episcopate. The newspaper reports that it was weakening in its stand against the government.

The petition is filed, according to Ernest C. Bell, "J. P." in the case, in the supreme court of good fellowship as plaintiff and "A. Good Barbecue" as defendant.

Although in ordinary courts of justice the defendant is supposed to come into court with the assumption of innocence, the defendant in the case is clearly adjudged before trial.

Section two of the petition sets out that in compliance with said ordinance, the defendant (the committee) has perfected arrangements to hold said barbecue in futuro, to wit: on Saturday, September 4, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, rain, shine or snow.

The petition also sets out that the use of the barbecue grounds has been the subject of much controversy and that the grounds are adequately equipped with tables, seats, shelter and large ice boxes.

One of the best barbecue artists in the city will prepare the food for trial and members will not be restricted in the sale of tickets, the petition reads further.

Remembering that the usual fee, an addenda is attached to the petition calling attention to the fact that a $2 fee is charged for papers, including a ticket, and that the usual fee is $2.
